Kirklauchline holiday cottage, Portpatrick, Scotland

There are few better places to recharge and unwind! A holiday here leaves you feeling relaxed and refreshed.

Located 3.5 miles from the small fishing Village of Portpatrick, Scotland, the cottage is ideal for couples, friends and families. Offering “the best of both worlds”, being close to the restaurants and bars of Portpatrick but occupying a quiet private location away from it all.

Delightfully located amongst unspoilt farmland, with open views towards the Irish Sea, Kirklauchline Cottage is a truly “get away from it all” destination. If peace and quiet is what you are looking for then look no further!

Completely refurbished throughout to provide stylish accommodation for guests, the cottage offers large open plan living / dining area heated by two multi fuel stoves. a well equipped kitchen, 2 bedrooms (double and twin) & bathroom equipped with bath and shower.

Kirklauchline Cottage is full of the character you would imagine from a 150 year old crofter's cottage, but still offers the modern conveniences you would expect including oil fired Central heating and instant hot water, flat screen TV, DVD, Freesat, wireless broadband and comfortable, quality furnishings. South West facing front windows allow the cottage to take full advantage of the beautiful sunsets and panoramic views across the Irish Sea towards Ireland and the Mountains of Mourne.

There are walks from the doorstep and an abundance of wildlife with frequent sightings of roe deer, hares, rabbits, buzzards, swallows, starlings and more. Warmed by the waters of the Gulf Stream this part of southwest Scotland can offer some of the best weather and a milder climate than you would imagine. The unspoilt beaches and countryside really do have the feel of the Highlands and Islands of Scotland without the extra travelling time or ferry ride.
